

Training Programme

Putting ideas into practice

Day 5

3 Ideas for experimentation 1

Activity

40 min

Useful for:

Ideas generation, giving confidence that you can have lots of good ideas and that they can be refined and improved, giving and receiving feedback and getting commitment to take action beyond the training. Developing first ideas for transnational work.

Resources needed:

Big flip chart paper sheets, pens, pencils, etc. The sheets on which the participants wrote down the ideas for activities they had been developing during the week (when working in pairs)

Room layout

Tables with chairs grouped around them

What happens?

The facilitator puts the participants into groups of two pairs (from different countries) and explains the exercise.

Participants are told that they are going to develop and refine some of the activities and ideas they have developed in pairs during the week which will allow them to integrate intercultural learning into their normal work in school.

Working in their groups they have to go through the activities developed throughout the week, choose one and develop a joint idea. They have 20 minutes to do this.

Pairs then swop so as to make new groups of four. Each group then takes another idea and develop a different activity. They work on that idea for a further 20 mins. In coming up with the idea each group must think about:

- a theme, learning outcome or curriculum subject
- at least one intercultural habit of mind

They need to write this idea up on the flip chart paper they have been given.
